II. President's Welcoming Message

Prof. Kang-Won Wayne Lee (University of Rhode Island)

Our Korean-American University Professors Association (KAUPA) has become one of the most versatile professional organizations through the strong leadership of past presidents and officers, and more importantly, the passion of its dedicated members. We have promoted encouraging and facilitating academic research and scholarly cooperation among members, especially research on Korean-Americans (K-As) and on Korea-U.S. relations, facilitated academic exchanges of scholars and scholarly works between North America and Korea, and sponsored programs for its members and Korean-Americans. However, we are facing some pressing challenges in order to meet the demands of both our changing organizations and society. Thus, I would like to focus on the following tasks during my term.

- (1) To make our KAUPA more relevant to the Korean community in the North America, including your professors, I would like to develop and expand venues for interaction such as topical and inter-disciplinary conferences, symposia, and workshops through which they can appreciate and be encouraged by the scope and accomplishment of K-A professors.
- (2) We plan to start strengthening our connections with existing K-A professional societies to promote an open environment and a quality-oriented image so that outstanding professors will feel that it is worthwhile to obtain and maintain membership and participation in KAUPA activities.
- (3) To be more proactive in reaching out to K-As whose primary or only mode of communications in English, i.e., 1.5 and 2nd generations, we will expand our current programs.
- (4) We will continue strengthening our financial stability.
- (5) The 15th Executive Committee will also work to increase our KAUPA membership. We are fortunate that our immediate past President, Professor Sunwoong Kim will work as an honorary web master and will help us to increase membership.

I am optimistic about the future of KAUPA because its members have the skills and knowledge to improve the general societal welfare through our common interests. Let us continue helping each other to achieve the fullest satisfaction of our professional careers as one giant family of K-A Professors in the USA and Canada. Thank you and have a great spring.
